C ARGENTINA: Meetings of high-level military leaders in the aftermath of the riots in Cordoba on Monday have sparked widespread rumors of a government crisis including the imminent resignation of President Levingston. The President appeared to be speaking with the authority of the junta of the commanders in chief yesterday, however, when he ordered the arrest of top Cordoba labor leaders and a government take-over of the major provincial unions. Even if these tough measures, coupled with the resignation of the unpopular governor of Cordoba, are successful in defusing further antigovernment activity, changes in the government and a re-appraisal of Levingston's political and economic policies are probable.
